

We are open

(and we always have been)

We improved the way we work, including speaking to many patients on the phone first.

This has helped reduce face-to-face contact, preventing the spread of COVID-19.

By doing this we can make sure you get the right appointment with the right person as quickly as possible.

If you do need to be seen face-to-face, we will invite you in for an appointment.

Despite a reduced workforce and increased demand, due to the new ways of working there has been an extra 1million appointments in general practice every day
